Small Fixtures Make A Big Design Impact

The difficult part of deciding which lamps work best for your space may be choosing from the nearly infinite range of types and styles available.

(NewsUSA) - When considering lighting design, chances are you picture major fixtures like ornate chandeliers, groupings of colorful pendants or elaborate track lighting. However, even small fixtures, such as portable lamps, can transform a room, according to the American Lighting Association (ALA).

Joe Rey-Barreau, education consultant for the ALA and associate professor at the University of Kentucky's School of Interior Design, says, "With the proper light bulb and shade, a lamp can provide effective task lighting while also serving as an important decorative element in a space."

It is important to view a lamp as a piece of the overall whole, not the only source of lighting in a room. One or two lamps cannot effectively illuminate a large space if they are the primary light source. Think of table and floor lamps as lighting accessories that create layers of light throughout a room.

Layering Your Lights

"Layering of light means there are multiple types of lighting fixtures in a single space," says Rey-Barreau. "For example, in addition to recessed and decorative lighting at the ceiling, table and floor lamps can provide lighting for dark corners."

The difficult part of deciding which lamps work best for your space may be choosing from the nearly infinite range of types and styles available.

Focusing on Bulbs

While in the past, table and floor lamps typically used incandescent bulbs, the introduction of LED light bulbs now provides a better option.

Honeymooners Are Opting for the Romance, Adventure of Cruises

Posted: Aug 15, 2013 4:45 PM UTC
Updated: Aug 15, 2013 4:45 PM UTC

Information contained on this page is provided by NewsUSA, an independent third-party content provider. WorldNow and this Station make no warranties or representations in connection therewith.

There are 2.5 million weddings in the United States each year, and the weddings business is a $40 billion annual industry, including the ceremony, reception, bachelor(-ette) parties and honeymoon.

Increasingly, newlyweds are opting for a cruise for a cost-effective and carefree honeymoon. About 5,000 weddings and vow renewals happen on cruises every year, and cruises now account for 15 percent of all honeymoons.

The inclusive nature of a cruise is a leading factor in the decision. A cruise provides a week of great food, pampering and entertainment for about $2,500 or less per person.

Most newlyweds say they prefer a week in a fun-and-sun destination. That makes cruises doubly attractive, since they visit several ports and offer a selection of shore tours.

Though the Hawaiian Islands remain the all-time favorite honeymoon destination, many newlyweds are choosing cruises in the Mediterranean and the Caribbean.

And there's no more romantic way to experience the wonders of the Med or Caribbean than a weeklong voyage aboard a tall ship. Star Clippers' three sailing ships only carry up to 170 or 227 guests, and visit some of the world's most exotic destinations.

Aboard Star Clippers, newlyweds can experience the luxury of a private yacht while sailing to smaller, lesser-known destinations big cruise ships can't visit.

Star Clippers' relaxed yet elegant shipboard atmosphere is the perfect antidote to months of wedding planning. Yet, the emphasis on beach time and water sports, and the array of soft-adventure excursions offered provide opportunities for couples to share new experiences as they start their life together.

Whether it's a fabulous honeymoon sailing through the Greek Isles, a barefoot wedding set on a Caribbean beach or a sunset vow-renewal ceremony performed by a ship's captain, Star Clippers offers the romance of a true sailing experience.

HONEYMOON DISASTER IS AN AWARD-WINNER

Published: February 14, 1999 12:00AM

It takes special valentines to remain married for 24 years.

But sometimes it takes more than that just to survive the honeymoon -- especially when your dream cottage turns out to be a log cabin with holes in the walls, snakes in the staircase, no running water, and a caved-in outhouse.

That was just part of the fun Bernie and Melanie Sinclair of Perrysville lived through -- and part of the story that won them this year's Thrifty Car Rental Honeymoon Disasters Contest.

From first impressions, the Sinclairs are typical of a happily married couple, perhaps even a little luckier than most.

Both are gainfully employed -- Bernie is a sales representative for Wagner Hardware in Mansfield and Melanie is a registered nurse and licensed massage therapist operating two businesses, Sinclair Holistic Health and Alive & Well.

They have three grown children, Sarah, Jeremiah and Daniel. They live in a spacious log house in rural Ashland County and own several large "nasty, but safe" dogs.

They seem to honestly enjoy each other's company and on occasion finish each other's sentences. (And, ladies, Bernie even vacuums!)

However, the beginning of their "wedded bliss" was anything but blissful. And that story has earned the couple an expenses-paid second honeymoon anywhere in the continental United States.

"We were young then," said Melanie. "Bernie was 20 and it was a week before my 21st birthday. My father was ill, so we had moved the wedding up so he could be there. I was late getting to the church and my dress wasn't ready, so they sewed me into it for the ceremony."

"Another gentleman walked me down the aisle and handed me off to my father, but caught part of the dress and veil (which wasn't finished completely either). In all of our wedding photos, you'll only see one of Bernie's hands because he is literally holding me together."

Because of limited funds, the Sinclairs decided to honeymoon in the groom's "ancestral home" in West Virginia.

"It had belonged to my great-grandparents, and then my grandparents before they had died," Bernie said.

When the couple arrived, they found that the cabin had holes in the walls, snakes on the stairway, and no running water. "Central heating" was from a pot-bellied stove, and, oh yes, the outhouse had collapsed.

On the first day, Bernie's aunt greeted the bride with a gun in one hand and a dead squirrel in the other. "Here, this is for supper," the aunt announced.

"That wasn't the worst part," said Melanie. "She stayed until 3 a.m. We took turns pretending to be asleep while the other one talked to her in hopes that she would get the idea and go home."

"It didn't work."

On the third night of their honeymoon, the couple was treated to a "shivaree" -- a custom in which friends and relatives stand outside a newly wedded couple's house, banging on pots and pans, telling crude jokes, and screaming until the couple offers them food.

According to the Sinclairs, there were more disasters, but they're unprintable.

Now the couple will get a second chance at a romantic getaway, thanks to the contest.

The Sinclairs have won a trip -- including airfare, hotel accommodations for three nights, and a four-day car rental -- to the city of their choice in the continental United States.

The Sinclairs haven't finalized their travel plans yet, but are leaning toward using the prize for a trip to Oregon to see the redwoods.

Meanwhile, they are enjoying their newfound celebrity status.

"We've been interviewed by newspapers from around the country," said Melanie.

"We have talked to the Boston Globe and also a newspaper in Dallas. ... The National Examiner ran our story and picture this week. We've also finished a taping for the 'Howie Mandell Show.'"

"Thrifty said this is the best response they have received since starting the contest five years
